New York Stock Market

New York, October 3.—The limited demand for stocks at the present range of prices was shown clearly by the course of to-day's trading. The market developed a downward tendency sufficiently definite to indicate that for the present at least the recovery of late last week was not to be carried further. Expectations of a vigorous upward movement at this time were based on the theory that with the market no longer in turmoil, investors would be attracted by the comparatively low prices to buy on a large scale. The demand from this source, however, has been small. The recovery appears to have been due almost entirely to short covering, and with the cessation of this movement the market has become dull and wavering. The disappointingly small investment buying was attributed to the fact that various disturbing questions chief among which is the intent of the government in regard to enforcement of the antitrust law, remain unanswered. Trading was on the same small scale as on yesterday, and was largely restricted to the professional element, which renewed operations in a moderate measure of the bear side. There were some attempts to advance prices at the close, but the rise encountered from offerings, which indicated that the supply was in excess of demand. The market grew wealer as the day, advanced, and aithough there was a partial recovery late in the day, small losses were general.

Selling of St. Paul in the first hour, when that stock approached its recent low record, was a factor which seemed to determine the market's course during the remainder of the day. Pressure against this issue was steady, throughout the session, and seemed to be due in no small measure to London selling. St. Paul. Amalgamated Copper and United States Steel were the

New orders of the United States Steel Corporation are placed at slightly below 30,000 tons a day. The steel corporation are placed at slightly below 30,000 tons a shrinkage, owing to the fact that shipments last month were in excess of new business.

The speculative community was taken aback by the opposition to the American Tobacco reorganization plan revealed in a petition submitted to the courts by one of the constituent companies. It was suggested to that opposition from other quarters was not improbable. This development was reflected in the heaviness of securities of the corporation.
